

Applied Sustainable Ranching | WL Campus

Program Information Package 2022-23

Program Description

The Applied Sustainable Ranching program is the first of its kind in British Columbia. This program allows students to work with livestock on active ranches and learn how you can help create a sustainable, environmentally friendly agricultural industry. In-class and/or online courses teach you the business of ranching and land management through business, communications, marketing, and economics courses, as well as natural resources, science and technology. The tools you gain will allow you to build and manage a diversified and resilient ranching operation or agricultural business in BC, across Canada and around the world.

What to Expect

- Participate in real-life ranching operations in BC
- Gain employment-ready experience
- Understand how ranch and rangeland ecosystems react to management decisions
- Understand livestock needs and how to best manage the natural environment to produce nutritious proteins to feed the world
- Learn to design ranching enterprises that fit the environment and resources while providing a return on investment
- Experience a program that is built in BC to address the needs of the local ranching environment
- Learn to develop and fine-tune enterprise management around the unique market opportunities in your region

Students are not required to live in Williams Lake to take this program. Due to the flexible blended learning model, students living and working on any ranch in BC or internationally can enroll in the program without having to move away from home. Students may attend the weekly seminars in person or via video conference.
